MACHINE UPSETS IN CHURCH ST. CRASH

Driver Escapes Serious Injury When Pinned Beneath Car

A Lewis 111 line at, was severely hurt when his car turned over on Church st. near Pine st. early Wednesday morning. Lewis was driving west on Church st. on his way to work at the Union station when his machine struck a car parked at the curb without lights. Lewis car turned over on the left side, pinning the driver beneath it. Several men being on the street lifted the car off of Lewis. The name of the owner of the parked car was not learned.

Phyllis is always charming — though some seem to regard it as only a look.

Those who ride in a loud whipper may not read very much, but they usually remember what they read.

Famous Recipe For Stopping a Severe Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any drugstore. Pour this into a pint bottle, then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly, and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the root of trouble, soothes away the inflammation, and loosens the grimed phlegm. At the same time it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a life-giving, unadulterated compound of genuine honey. It contains the active agent of cod liver oil in a refined, palatable form and known as one of the greatest building agents for a weaker, cough, chest colds and from child troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

British Performers at Local Theater Express Concern Over Illness of King

PHIL and Phyllis, who appeared in a combined dancing and acrobatic act at the Palace theater, the foremost of this week played Marion as their first engagement in North America.

Phil and Phyllis, who in private life are Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Linder of London, Eng., came direct to Marion from England about a week ago, after completing a lengthy engagement at the London coliseum. They made their crossing on the "American Trader," a passenger ship which preceded the "American Shipper." The latter boat figured prominently in work of rescuing victims of the ill-fated Vestril.

Long Honeymoon Trip
Phil and Phyllis are visiting America as a part of their "honeymoon trip around the world." They have already visited South America, Africa and nearly all the European countries.

Both Phyllis and Phil expressed their approval of America and said they regarded American people as "kind." Phil is of American descent and Phyllis is wholly English.

DOCTOR SHOWS QUICKEST WAY TO END HEAD COLDS

Templing Taste! Instant Relief—Then Cold Just Disappears—When Treated This Way

Preventing even the slightest cold is the surest way to prevent needless misery and may be pneumonia. So doctors are now recommending a method that is giving quick relief—not only in extreme cases but in vast numbers of cases in Marion and vicinity.

Miss Edith Dennis, for example, suffered her cold until her eyes became inflamed, her nose stopped and her throat started spreading so she called her doctor who advised her to use "Cherry Pectoral"—a hospital compound of wild cherry, eucalyptus, etc.

With the first pleasant swallow she felt the comforting, healing warmth, relief began instantly and in an hour the medication was absorbed by her system, loosening up congestion in her nose passages and chest. When she awoke next morning there was practically no sign of the cold—and a number of her friends who had disappeared entirely.

Note: Other cases reported daily—all certified by attending physician.

This hospital certified medicine quickly penetrates and heats inflamed linings of the air passages. Absorbed by the system it helps get rid of congestion, reduce fever and drives out the cold from the nose passages, throat and chest.

Just a few pleasant spoonfuls of Ayer's Pectoral now and you, too, will feel like a different person tomorrow. At all drugists—80c and, twice as much in $1.00 hospital size.

Kidnaper Reported Kidnaped Shows Up at Home; Unharmed

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 6.—Ed Alvey, big race track "operator," who was reported kidnaped here Monday night, showed up at his home early today, unharmed and well. Alvey said he had been seized in front of his home by six men, blindfolded and jammed into an automobile and driven around town for about an hour. Finally he said, the car stopped and he was taken into a house, which he believed was located across the river in New Albany, Ind.

There, Alvey said, he was held prisoner while his abductors tried to collect $50,000 ransom for his delivery. Unable to get Alvey's wife on the phone, the kidnapers gave up the extortion attempt and set him free, Alvey said.

$1 Deposit and Interest for 17 Years In Oldest Postal Savings Account Here

SINCE the recent release of statistics from Postmaster General New, chairman of the board of trustees of postal savings, showing an increase in deposits over last year of $1,781,095, interesting facts have been furnished by the local postoffice.

The present total of deposits here is $11,500. The oldest account is one of a school boy, now grown to manhood, who deposited $1 with the local postoffice Oct. 21, 1911, and has since made no deposit and has not withdrawn the lone bill yet. The interest is slowly but surely accruing and his heirs several hundred years from now may have a tidy sum given them by the United States government.

HOURS MIGHT ELAPSE AFTER KING'S DEATH

Formal Announcement Would Be Made by Home Secretary

By International News Service
The serious illness of King George has aroused worldwide interest in the manner in which in event of his death, the news would be conveyed to a waiting world.

The formal announcement of the sovereign's death would be made by the home secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, who, by virtue of his office, must officiate at all births, deaths and marriages in the royal family.

Due to the formalities which must be observed in such an event, it is probable that from five to six hours would elapse between the actual demise of the king and the formal public announcement of his death.

Ambassadors Notified
The members of the royal family and high officials of state would have been called to the actual deathbed, these officials including the lord high chancellor, the archbishop of Canterbury and the home secretary. Upon the report of the attending physician that death had occurred, a meeting of the privy council would be called immediately at Buckingham palace, and the home secretary would notify the lord mayor of London of the king's demise. All British ambassadors and ministers throughout the world would be notified by cable.

After all these details had been attended to the home secretary would make the public announcement of the king's death, and a public proclamation would be issued in the name of the new king. According to English constitutional law, the country is never, for an instant, without a ruling sovereign. The new king, according to the throne simultaneously with the death of the old.

New Parliament Called
Simultaneously with the king's death the existing parliament comes to an end, and a new parliament is summoned in the name of the new king, to whom each member of parliament must take an oath of allegiance.

Although these formalities necessitate a delay of several hours in the announcement of the death of a king of England, their very observance renders impossible a practice sometimes observed in oriental lands of suppressing the news of the death of a sovereign for several days.

In the case of King Edward a death period of five hours layed between his actual demise and the public announcement of the event.

UNITED STATES air mail now carries 2,383 miles a day, a little more than once around the earth. Congratulations are due to the postmaster general and the president.

More than 100 mail except air mail except for elect baals will seem as queer as old stage coach mails.

Like the Metropolitan Museum of New York was duped by imitation Greek art.

That heading tells how an antique factory in a clever Italian, imposed on heretofore experts.

It does not prove that the statue was not a good statue.

Michael Angelo made imitation statues buried them in the ground to make them look old. Those to an art loving cardinal in Rome. Those fakes would be worth a good deal now.

If the Metropolitan Museum would spend money on works of men and women now living, they would have no bogus worries.

ELYRIA CHEST FUND NOW IN 13TH YEAR

Community Welfare Finance Plan Successful in Ohio City

The Elyria Chest Fund, which has been successful in its efforts to provide financial aid to the needy, is now in its 13th year. The fund has received donations from many individuals and businesses in the community.

The basic unit of the Elyria or Chest Fund is the Community Service Council of 100 leading citizens. These citizens represent every profession, industry and business. Every person of any influence who believes in the chest, is a member of this or Chest Fund.

Two meetings of these 100 citizens are held each year for the purpose of learning the needs of the city and the prospects for the year.

At the spring meeting of the council an executive committee of seven is elected. This committee selects an executive committee, which in turn selects a campaign chairman and other officers. The executive committee, then meets with the representatives of the various beneficiaries of the chest, and makes suggestions as to desirable changes and finally works out a budget for the needs of the city's charities for the year.

During this period the campaign chairman has selected leaders for the various groups in the campaign.

Committee A is made up of about 50 prominent persons who solicit subscriptions from the 100 contributors in the case of Elyria Chest. Those of over $1000 are given to members of this committee a list of names of the contributors.

KING'S INFECTION BEING LOCALIZED

Royal Household Greatly Cheered by News of Medical Bulletin

Members of the British royal household were greatly cheered today by the morning medical bulletin which said that King George's temperature was lower, his general condition was improved and that the lung infection was being localized.

This bulletin brought relief after the unfavorable announcement last night that the king's fever had risen.

However, danger from heart weakness continues.

London's fog is proving a health factor. Apparatus has been set up in the sick room in Buckingham palace to dry and purify the air as it enters the windows.

The British warship, Entreprenant, bearing the prince of Wales home, is standing northward through the Red Sea today. It should enter the Suez canal tomorrow afternoon.

Despite the absence of the prince, the state council has begun to function.

The largest claim in the list to be passed upon by the commissioners is for $20,000 suffered by a Marion township farmer. The next highest is for $2,000 presented by a Green Canyon township farmer. The smallest claim is for $500 presented by a Blanding Green township farmer.

Congressman La Guardia, of New York, Congressman La Guardia and a number of Time To Call a Halt.

Many law-abiding citizens have been ruthlessly slain by dry law enforcement officers, but it is seriously to be questioned if the death of any of them has caused such general resentment throughout the country as the action of the common pleas judge of Lorain county in slaying Louis Cicco, city prohibition officer of Lorain, five dollars for shooting and wounding Miss Betty Heywood, a twenty-two-year-old subject of Great Britain.

The judge has attempted to justify the smallness of the fine on the ground that the costs, which were assessed against Cicco, amounting to $253.97, exceed $200, the maximum fine for assault and battery, of which Cicco was found guilty.

Miss Heywood, her father and some friends were returning to Lorain from a drive on the night of September 26. Near that city three men jumped out from a side road and ordered the machine to halt. Fearing it was a hold-up, the Heywood party increased the speed of their car, but before they could get out of range they were fired upon and Miss Heywood slumped in the seat, shot in the head. The men, who later turned out to be members of a dry squad, were arrested and Friday the officer who had done the shooting, which placed the life of the girl in jeopardy and confined her to a hospital for weeks—she is still under the care of a physician—was fined the paltry sum stated.

The standing of the victim, her father and their companions in the car is unquestioned, and the testimony showed that there was not a drop of liquor in the car.

Some papers are inclined editorially to look upon the action of the court as legal sanction for every official desperado in the land to work his unrestricted will at the expense of the private citizenry of the nation, holding that such enforcement officers look upon themselves as masters of life and death, assuming the practices and prerogatives of feudal lords.

We would not go that far, but there is no getting away from the fact that such a fine has been taken generally as a travesty upon justice, and has brought out such a volume of just protest against indiscriminate shooting by dry enforcement officers as has never been voiced before. If the prohibition law is to endure, as we hope it may, every one of its friends should realize that there must be a change in the methods which will bar such outrages as suffered by the young woman in this case, and such invitations to resentment on the part of an outraged citizenship as this five-dollar fine has occasioned.

Still the Land of Opportunity.

Thirty-six years ago this fall, in response to her request for a boy to look after her horses, President David Starr Jordan, of Stanford university, sent a youngster to Mrs. Lucy Pletcher Brown, of New York City, who at that time was the head of a school for girls up in the hills near Palo Alto, California.
The lad carried a note from the university president which stated that the bearer, giving his name, was hardly prepared to enter the university, but that he was good stuff and that they were taking him in. It was further explained in the note that the boy had to earn his way and that, as he knew all about horses, he would probably prove to be just what she wanted.

Mrs. Brown instructed the boy regarding his duties. He was to keep the horses in good shape, feed them, stable them, bring them around with the school bus in the morning and put them away at night. He was to have a room, eat breakfast and dinner in the kitchen, and the Chinese cook of the school was to prepare a lunch to carry to college.
The boy listened attentively and in silence went to work.

"And that," said Mrs. Brown in an interview a day or two ago, "is the last I heard of him—almost literally—until the day, several months later, when he came and told me that he had obtained enough work on the campus to support himself and that he would send a friend of his to work for us if we wanted him.
The friend came and, incidentally, eventually became superintendent of schools in California.

"In all the months he worked for us I don't suppose I ever said more than half a dozen words to him. He never talked, but—you should have seen the way he took care of those horses."

The lad, Mrs. Brown went on to say, lived at the boys' dormitory on the Stanford campus after leaving her employment, and did odd jobs and waited on table.

That square-faced youth, who, clad in a cheap suit and a checkered gingham shirt, went to Mrs. Brown to care for her team thirty-eight years ago, has come along considerably in the intervening years. He is not looking after horses now and outling in the kitchen with a Chinese cook, nor is he doing odd jobs and waiting on table. Just at present he is traveling on a great battleship in South American waters as an envoy of good will from a land of 120,000,000 people to the people of the Central and South American republics, having recently been chosen head of the greatest of all republics by the largest vote and the largest majority ever given a candidate for office. And after noon of March 4, God willing, he will be living in the White House.

Yes, that boy has traveled some in thirty-eight years. There's quite a gap between calling in the kitchen of a girls' school out in California, and occupying the place of honor at the White House table with all that that place of honor implies.

Real worth and high merit do not go without reward. Recognition is not always so general, nor honor and reward always so high as in the case of this poor boy of thirty-eight years ago who worked his way through college, but they seldom fail to attract attention, recognition and appreciation. And believe it or not, no matter what may be held to the contrary, the United States is still the land of opportunity, the land in which merit and worth bring greater recompense than in any under the shining sun.

Albion, to be sentenced to prison for life on his fourth conviction for robbery, a New York thing was shot to death when he pulled a gun and attempted to force his way from the courtroom. Is it the New York City practice to permit prisoners to carry guns when being taken before a court for sentence?

A New Orleans woman, who was told fifty years ago that she had but three days to live, celebrated with her husband her fiftieth wedding anniversary this week. Here we have a second case within ten days where a family doctor didn't bury his mistake. In a word, human decrees are not always final.

English banknotes to the value of $56,000 were found in the safe deposit box of a London police sergeant, many of them traced to the bank accounts of night club and diva keepers. Humanity is pretty much the same the world over. Crooks may be found just about anywhere.

The American Civil Liberties union has retained Clarence Darrow and Arthur G. Hays, who were associated in defending Scopes in the Tennessee evolution trial, to defend John Brophy and Patrick Toohey, who were arrested on a charge of rioting and inciting to riot following the breaking-up of a meeting of striking miners before whom Toohey was criticizing the policy of the United States government in Nicaragua. A possible explanation may be that both Brophy and Toohey are recognized disloyalists. The Civil Liberties union is always strong for disloyalists.

Vagrant Verse.

LES MORTS VONT VITE.

Les morts vont vite! Ah, for a little space We miss and mourn them fallen from their place.
To take our portion in their rest are fain;
To lay by and by, having wept, press on again.
Perchance to win their laurels in the race.
What man would find the old in the new world's face?
Seek on the fresher lips the old kisses' trace?
For withered roses never bloom dislaid?
Les morts vont vite!
But when disease brings thee in piteous case, When slant thy dead recall, and thy ill grace To them for whom remembrance pleads in vain.
Then, shuddering, think, while thy head fellow in Clasps thee with arms that cling like Death's embrace.
Les morts vont vite!

Croup Rare Without Warning.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

In my mail recently came a letter from a Pennsylvania newspaper editor. He asked me to rewrite an article on croup. "Every time my little boy gets a cold, he develops croup, and I should like to know of preventive means and how best to take care of an attack when it comes," so writes my friend. Croup is not so common a disease now as it used to be. That is to say they used to call a great many ailments croup which we now know for something else. A mild form of diphtheria was known in those days as "membranous croup."

Between the part of the throat which can be seen on opening the mouth, and the larynx, is a portion of the anatomy known as the larynx. The larynx then lies between the base of the tongue and the windpipe.

This space is lined with mucous membrane just as all other parts of the breathing machinery are lined. Whenever there is mucous membrane it is liable to inflammation.
It is not uncommon for a child between the ages of two and five to be attacked by croup. It is rare indeed for the attack to come on without some warning. In all probability there has been "crouping" of the nose, a slight cough, and perhaps a little fever.

As I say, this is up to be the case, but on the other hand, there are attacks which come on with great suddenness. The child awakens soon after the first nap and a slight hacking cough is the first evidence of trouble. The cough of a croup patient is peculiar. It has a certain metallic sound, a ringing sound.

The child suffers greatly in his breathing. It is extremely difficult to get the breath. The air whistles through the throat. There is so much swelling of the mucous membrane that there is little space through which the air can pass.

The child is likely to become feverish, the patient is flushed and the pulse is rapid. Difficult breathing frightens the youngster, he cries, is restless, and wants to be carried.

These symptoms may reappear the next night, or for two or three nights in succession. Whenever they come, however, they cause great anxiety to the parents.

In the treatment of croup, the first thing to do is to overcome the swelling of the throat. To this end it is a good thing to fill a tub with water at a temperature of about 100 degrees. Take great pains not to have the water so hot as to scald the child. "Try your own elbow in the water and see if it is endurable. Keep the child in this hot bath for fifteen or twenty minutes. At the same time apply cold compresses to the throat.

A hot foot bath may be helpful. To enough water to fill a basin, a teaspoonful of mustard may be added. This may draw enough blood from the upper part of the body to give relief.

It is important for children who have croup to have diseased tonsils or adenoids removed if they exist. They must be given plenty of fresh air and good feeding in order that they may grow up to be strong and vigorous adults. Attention to the hygienic things will be helpful in overcoming the tendency to croup.

LACK OF APPRECIATION.

In answering complaints on this side of the border about the way in which the anti-smuggling treaty of 1921 between the United States and Canada is operating, the Dominion national revenue officials say that "any infraction of the United States Volstead act from Canadian imports is due to the laxity of the United States enforcement, and not to any refusal or delay on their part to co-operate." They assert also that "information regarding shipments from Canada of liquor which might be for illegal entry into the United States is neither sought nor welcomed by those whose business in the United States is to procure such liquor only."

The charge that the American customs border control does not ask nor desire helpful information from officials across the frontier is now new. The point has been brought up before in this vicinity, and in view of the facts furnished by United States District Attorney Watkins and Collector Ferguson as a result of their investigation of the conduct of the frontier duty agents, there is every reason to accept it somewhere near face value. A crouching border patrolman naturally does not welcome aid that makes his crookedness harder to conceal. And whether or not Canadian officials have always been as anxious as they might have been to prevent the shipment of wet goods from their country into the United States, conditions that are quite within the scope of common knowledge make it evident that there has been laxity on this side of the border which has been anything but an incentive to the Canadians to give help and cooperation. The Dominion government has certain obligations and duties under the anti-smuggling treaty, but so has the American government. If, because of the conduct of its agents, the American government fails to do its part, how can it expect the other signatory to be very active?

FRAGRANT CHICAGO.

Just the latest headline story from Chicago.
The scene of the story is a blind pig owned by an Illinois state representative. A city detective has a quarrel with the bartender. The bartender was a city policeman till he was recently suspended and given the job in the speakeasy. The bartender, not having a gun of his own handy, grabbed a revolver from the holster of a city policeman and used it on the detective. Several other policemen were present at the informal social gathering which culminated in the killing.
Just true story from Chicago.

A little episode of the life of the great big city where gangsters and gamblers and racketeers blithely pursue their brief but interesting careers.
The episode, it seems, is indicative of one reason why the politics and government of Chicago are unlucrative. For this is no story of battle between beer gangs, but just the tale of a quarrel of policemen and an ex-policeman in a speakeasy. —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Does your wife have her own way in the house?"
"I'll say she does. Why, she even writes up her diary a week ahead of time."

"Do you favor a simple inauguration?"
"Of course," answered Senator Borah.
"A campaign is so complicated that some need of political simplification becomes immediately apparent."

Wife, in a reflective mood—"Ah, if we only knew what the future has in store for us." Hubby—"Well, don't worry, dear. Whatever it is you'll get it at a bargain."

The policeman stopped the red-headed driver on the ice-wagon and said:
"This man complains that you hit him without provocation."

"Oh hit him all right, but not without provocation."

"What have you against him?"
"Allusion of affection," replied the iceman. "He sold Bridget Nolan's missus wan of him electric ice boxes."

New York Day by Day.

BY G. O. MINTYRE.

New York, Dec. 5.—A sudden after-theater rain emphasizes Manhattan's "second company" nerves—its restlessness and impatience. For some reason the town becomes impatient in a shower. The other evening after a brilliant premiere, the crowd was imprisoned under the marquee by a downpour.

Broadway immediately tied itself up in a traffic knot. The quickest stepping street in the world was suddenly inert. Those shabby umbrella-wielders, who appear mysteriously from nowhere two minutes after a rain, offered no comfort. It was a dreary "carriage crowd."

For a few minutes it retained a good humor. Then that nerves began to explode.
Imprecations at police and carriage callers turned to blasphemies. The usual jostling accepted good naturedly by crowds resulted in verbal spats and nasty epithets were passed.

It is no exaggeration to say the assemblage was on the brink of rioting. One stiff and staid—mostly self—gentleman mounted a chair and delivered a fiery oration on injustice, pointing out the only citizen able to depart was a high city official in a low-numbered car. That gesture is overdone, by the way.

There followed more hoots and cater-wauling for the police whose number had luckily been reinforced. Before it was over an excited woman snatched an evening wrap from another woman and ground it under her heel, and to cap the well-known climax an elderly lady slumped to the sidewalk in a faint.

It was a bit of midnight madness that would probably not take place in any other American city. In Paris they cut such capers before breakfast, just for the exercise. But in the big emotional crisis New York keeps its head, but disturbed by inconsequential it flies off the handle.

And when it does the depth of mean-temper is touched as may be noticed at what is considered a rank right decision at Madison Square garden. No matter how many ladies are present the language becomes decidedly
"The Front Page."

An opera bouffe touch was offered at one of the glided resorts near Montauk Point this summer. It is a combination gambling casino and cafe. A wine waiter offers a wine card of the choice spirits the establishment affords in a silver frame. But it is attached to a chain padlocked to his wrist.

And near Montauk Point is another interesting place where the city and horses with its wide green yard and row of white posts.
There are whitewashed walls with creepers and leaded windows and patrons may have one of those dinners of the English countryside with Yorkshire pudding, fags of real ale and such. It is all served at tables between genuine oak beams and an old flagged floor. Red faced and tubby English waiters, imported from Canada, are on hand, and there is no music. It is so far back from the main roadway visitors say they can almost hear the swish of a feather. And, I presume, the squelch of a bog.

Facing the Earth.

BY GARRETT P. SEIYISS.

A girl named Pauline, in Stanton, Mich., has written to me asking for an explanation of these statements which she read in a general science book, to wit: "No one can see the other side of the moon," and "The moon turns around once in twenty-eight days." She does not see the consistency.

Well, Pauline, imagine a very attractive young woman to be sitting in the middle of a room, with all eyes, from all sides—every female eyes fixed upon her, at least at very frequent intervals. Now if a young man should make a circuit of the room, without question he would come so near to her that his gaze continually toward her that it as well be called a permanent fixation. So she would never see the back of his head.
And yet, as he went around, people sitting along the walls would see both sides of him in succession, and it would be apparent to them that he was all the time turning on a vertical axis.

The same thing would also be evident to the young woman, since, plainly, he could not always face her, without turning to the west or north or south of her. Now, unless he turned upon his own center, he would be substituting the attraction of gravitation for that of feminine beauty, we have here an exact image of the motion of the moon around the earth—the earth taking the place of the attractive young woman in the center of the room and the moon that of the fascinateyoung man.

It is strictly true, according to the principle of "tidal friction," that the attraction of the earth has caused the moon to turn around upon itself in the same time that it turns around, or revolves around, the earth.
Each motion occupies roughly the space of time that we call a month.

There is a little discordance, which science is able to account for, and which enables us to get alternate glimpses, first a little around one side and then a little around the other side of the moon's constant face; but this is only analogous to the shifting views that the young woman would get of the side face of her revolving admirer as he sneered his reverend back around the siren center. These side glimpses that the moon gives are called by the unpoetic name of "librations."

My correspondent also wishes to know whether the sun moves, and if it does, does it move in an orbit or "just whirls?"

If I Were A Man

BY JILL

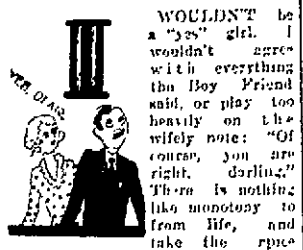

I DON'T KNOW my liquor limit and stick to it. I wouldn't make a fool of myself by drinking more than I could stand. I'd recognize the danger point when I looked at my right hand and stop right there—just.

If three drinks found me leaning into the stories, I'd stop at two. If two made me think I was drunk, I'd stop at one. If one made me feel like I was drunk, I'd stop at half. If one drink made me tell the story of my life to the first person who'd listen, I'd stop at the water wagon and stay there.

A man who can't hold his liquor is no use to a girl. Some can drink and get away with it—others can't. I'd find out which class I belonged to and I'd do out my pulse accordingly.

If I Were
A Girl

BY JACK

I WOULDN'T be a "yes" girl. I wouldn't agree with everything the Boy Friend said, or play too heavily on the "wifely note." Of course, you are right, darling. There is nothing like monkeying to keep life, and take the time to agree with me.

I'd have a mind of my own occasionally and I wouldn't be afraid to express it. If a man asked me what I wanted to do, I'd tell him: If he asked me which way I'd like to go, I'd have a preference. "Whatever you want" as a constant refrain is not to pull upon the masculine ear, while a little opposition, judiciously placed, adds the thrill and excitement of the game.

I wouldn't be too willing if I wanted to hold any man. An occasional "No" is often worth a dozen "Yeses."

more work perhaps, but it's not as expensive in the end. We are indulging in attractive wrapping paper in silver, green, red and white embossed with holly, silver and colored cards and appropriate ribbons. We are also investing in odd containers, Indian baskets, a pair of moccasins, wooden shoes, small aluminum frying pans, and making silk and other bags shaped for the purpose needed.

We have made boxes of four compartments. When empty the compartments may be remodeled. The boxes are silk covered. We are filling them with salted nuts, almonds, pecans, walnuts and brazil nuts. Several friends who entertain are sure to be delighted with such a gift. We are sending a few silk gift boxes of mixed nuts which will be infinitely more appreciated than just a card, which would have cost almost as much.

During the Summer we made some fancy jam and we are sending six small tumbler packed in a charming basket which may be used for a work basket when emptied. Our home-made cookies, doughnut boys, pan-wholes, ginger wafers and milk-frosted cookies and raisin stuffed cookies we are sending in fancy boxes, and a few in attractive cork jars. Cooky families go in flat boxes, gingham covered and tape tied.

We are also making individual pumpkin and mince pies, each box containing one for each member of a family. These are for intimate friends who are kitcheners and only require a few minutes to bake. When we were away last Summer "down east," we picked dried and stripped leaves from brook mint, sage, and some of the sweet herbs and now we are packaging them attractively in baskets for our cooking friends' seasoning shelves. We also made some fruit cake and are sending spiced of that as gifts. It is amazingly good and full of fruit and flavor. We made just a few plum puddings and these go wrapped and in the attractive polka-dot boxes they were steamed in.

Of course we have made candles, but of the sort that keep well, some nut pruned, candied peels, fruit rolls, hard candies, and butter-soft, but at the last minute we are going to make some funny popcorn balls and some mince pies for our nearest and dearest who are friends. So much for our cooked gifts.

We have made a few sets of kitchen linens for quite new and quite old housekeeping friends, including them in outline attractively, especially the tea towels. We made a set of kitchen aprons for a friend who finds it difficult to get hers to fit, ready made. To a new mother we are sending a folding bath table for baby and a set of nursery towels, quickly remembered.

For another friend we have selected a set of fancy kitchen cooking knives, curved, well-polished and pointed, a French hewing knife and a few others that she, as an expert cook, will appreciate.

We have also indulged in magazine subscriptions for our reading friends, magazines of all types we all want, but do not always feel justified in taking. One friend said in our hearth, "I hope some one will give me a covered nickel-toning pan for Christmas. It is the only way I shall ever own one," so we are going to be the Santa Claus for this wish. And there are other wishes that have come to us in the same way that we are going to gratify.

We have not been into a single crowded shop nor have we spent as much money as usual, but we are terribly well satisfied with ourselves and hope our friends will feel the same way on Christmas morning.

NOTHING TO WORRY ABOUT IF YOU SAVE IN YOUTH

Marion National Bank

AMONG the thousands of clothing factories, large and small, throughout the country, there are none to compare with the Richman main factory in Cleveland. There are none to match it in size or output—none with finer equipment and working facilities—none, perhaps, where good clothes making has become so exact a science, so highly specialized. And certainly there is no organization of clothing workers like the big Richman "family"—3000 happily contented men and women who give their utmost skill and care to the tailoring of Richman's Clothes because they are part owners of this business, and really want to please you.

THAT'S why the clothes we make in our factories, and sell direct to you without a middleman's profit, give you more real quality and greater value than any clothes you can buy at $22.50, or a price anywhere near that figure.

RICHMAN'S CLOTHES

all $ 22.50

Think of choosing from our immense stock any suit or overcoat you like—or any tuxedo suit with silk vest—at this amazingly low price.

COURTS-MARTIAL

1,000 Men Face Military Action, 313
Dishonorably Discharged

Washington, Dec. 6.—Efforts to maintain discipline in the United States coast guard during the past year resulted in over 1,000 courts-martial, 313 dishonorable discharges, and 128 cases of imprisonment. Admiral F. C. Billard, commandant, declared in his annual report today.

Ever since the coast guard has been charged with the responsibility of fighting rum smuggling, discipline has been a problem. Many of the courts-martial resulting in dishonorable discharge were the outgrowth of activities of the rum-runners. A big percentage of the imprisonments resulted from desertion.

Stuffed-Up With Cold? Try This On Pillow

This morning a most remarkable thing took place in thousands of homes! In each of them, someone who went to bed all stuffed up with cold and up completely relieved and boasting of a wonderful night's rest! These people represent part of the great army now availing themselves of the marvelous discovery known as "Arome" which is being introduced here with such overwhelming success.

Nothing could act quicker than "Arome" to relieve coughs, head colds, bronchial colds, nasal catarrh, headaches etc. It goes directly to the seat of the trouble. It is an aromatic liquid which vaporizes as you breathe in through nose and mouth. It is highly concentrated so a few drops on your pillow at night, or handkerchief in the morning, lasts for hours. As you inhale it, its healing vapor penetrates all the air passages, driving out the congestion which is the cause of most headaches, as well as that feeble, weak condition, people are usually in from coughs and colds. It soothes the irritated and inflamed lining of the nose and throat, gets rid of that stuffed-up feeling and the mucous discharge from colds, makes you comfortable and happy again. All drug stores recommend and guarantee "Arome." The handy purse or pocket-fitting vials are just fifty cents!—Adv.

S.S.S. and Rheumatism Simply don't get along together

You know it cannot be rubbed away

ARE you one of those unfortunate ones who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.?

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude. "After suffering several years, six bottles of S.S.S. completely relieved me of rheumatism. It also cleared up a skin eruption and gave me a good appetite. I think S.S.S. is a wonderful medicine."—R. L. Busie, Southern Railway, Knoxville, Tenn.

"I was very nervous, had hardly any appetite, and suffered with rheumatism. I tried many medicines, but S.S.S. is the one that did me the most good. I am now well, and feel like a new man."—William Osborne, 2406 Sloan Street, Flint, Michigan.

S.S.S. is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Get the larger size. It is more economical.
